

Good Spirits

--

GOOD SPIRITS
collection

GUATEMALA RUM 43,0°

Made from cane honey distilled in a column still; ideal for those seeking a smooth, delicate and approachable drink, with enveloping, sweet notes

Style - Spanish / Ron Tradicional

Raw Material - cane honey

Distillation Method - column still

Casks used - second-fill ex-Bourbon casks

Blending, dilution and additives - no additives used / 0 g/L (Natural)

Production area: Licorera Zacapanenca (producer of Zacapa / Botran), Guatemala

Fragrance: delicate, sweet aromas; hints of tropical fruit, vanilla, caramel, chocolatey notes of milk chocolate bars, dried fruit and fruit preserved in alcohol

Flavor: smooth, full-bodied, not too dry; a well-rounded profile, of medium length and easy on the palate; easy to drink, suitable for everyone

Alcoholic Grade: 43% vol

The Good Spirits collection is a journey through the most famous rum-producing regions, where tradition, technique and terroir come together. In Demerara, Guyana, Demerara Distiller LTD uses stills that have been in operation since the late 19th century. Here, the rums are distinguished by their smoothness and spicy notes, elegant balance and unique character. In Barbados, Foursquare combines column stills and pot stills and uses different barrels for ageing, creating structured, complex and persistent rums that are examples of modernity and craftsmanship. Jamaican rums are instantly recognisable: spices, pepper and ginger emerge from prolonged fermentation of molasses, giving them a bold and distinctive character. In Guatemala, the only national distillery, Industrias Licorera, distils with copper pot stills and ages its rums at 2,300 metres above sea level using the Solera method, resulting in products of great elegance and aromatic complexity. Finally, in Martinique, rare rhum agricole is made from fresh cane juice in Creole column stills, with herbaceous notes and green nuances, an authentic expression of the terroir and local tradition. Each bottle in the Good Spirits collection tells a piece of the world's story, where history, technique and territory come together in a unique sensory journey.