The first grape harvest of Fred Prinz was in 1991, even though he always worked as a manager and then as production manager in a nearby winery until 2004. He worked hard with his wife Sabine on building the company that carries his name. The vineyard, with an average age of 40 years, offers grapes that are extraordinary in both complexity and minerality, qualities that most characterise the ‘vins de garage’ of this small producer. A young but well-established winery where the future is in good and young hands, as the two children, Anna and Florian, work alongside their father, now recognised as a great interpreter of the Rheingau.
