

Loimer

Austria - Kamptal - Langenlois

LOIMER

Ownership/Founders Fred Loimer

Start of Activity 1998

Vitiviniculture Certified biodynamic

Hectares 85

Bottles produced 500.000

RIESLING KAMPTAL

100% Riesling

Production area: Langenlois

Terrain: gneiss, ghiaia e loess

Harvest: manual

Vinification: in stainless steel tanks for 8-12 weeks at a maximum of 20°C

Refinement: in stainless steel tanks on whole lees until the beginning of January (3-4 months) and on fine lees until bottling

Color: straw yellow with greenish highlights

Fragrance: fresh flavours of peach, currant, kiwi, honey, candied ginger and Aranzini (candied orange peel)

Flavor: Juicy and supple with pure, concentrated fruit and lime jelly, lemon zest marks the powerful, long finish

Alcoholic Grade: 12% vol

Fred Loimer, who had just graduated at the beginning of the 1990s, attracted a certain amount of attention and caused quite a stir in the Langenlois and surrounding area because, although he came from a traditional winegrowing family, he had decided to vinify the must obtained from Austria's flagship variety Grüner Veltliner in barrels. Enthusiastic about the good result, he applied the same method to the Chardonnay! In 1998, he took over the winery from his father and in 2000 had a black, minimalist cube built on a 150-year-old cellar excavated by hand in the loess at Langenlois, thus adding new spice to the fascinating Kellergassen, the cellar roads: a true pioneer of the wine architecture movement. Closer to nature, Fred practices viticulture that protects soils and resources and consequently increases the quality of the wines. The Loimer winery began converting to biodynamic farming in 2006 and in 2007 Fred, together with many fellow winegrowers, founded respect-BIODYN, a community that consistently implements and lives biodynamics in viticulture. Spontaneous fermentation with natural yeasts; weeks, sometimes months of soaking on the skins; patient maturation without intervention or additives are just some of the 'secrets' of Fred Loimer and his wines, a true star in the Austrian Kamptal scene.